

The recording is titled, "The WTC-10-5-the-message-about-the-remote-controlled-plane." In the mélange of scratchy voices bumping each other off and on, around minute three, the words "remote controlled-plane" bump through clearly, are interrupted, and finally assert quite clearly again that "there's a big truck on King Street with the mural of an airplane painted on it diving into New York City and exploding." It was later noted "King Street between 6th and 7th Avenues," about a mile north of WTC, which was in direct line of sight from King St. and 6th Avenue.

What's more as the NYPD stopped for a look at the truck, two men were seen fleeing from it and were apprehended by the police.

The reports include the famous or infamous Israeli-owned Amdocs Ltd., reported by Fox to be spying for Israel through the telecommunication products it sells and systems and services it operates and offers. Its products are widely used by the US telecommunications industry and government agencies like the NSA and DEA, to mention a few. Amdocs, in fact, stores every phone message or request for information made.

Israel has been listening to every phone in America for years and has the technology to monitor and record who any individual is calling, anywhere in America. It subcontracts billing and directory services for phone companies around the world, with 90 percent of American phone companies as clients. But Amdocs is 100 percent Israeli owned.
