

We delude ourselves when we think that what is happening will just magically 'go away' with the next president. We delude ourselves when we think that an election is the cure for what ails us. We delude ourselves when we deny our own individual responsibility in changing the trajectory of where our country is headed. We delude ourselves when we think that nothing can be done to stop what is happening. We delude ourselves when we think that the 'War on Terror' is only a war on evil crazy terrorists.
