

Eating soy linked to memory loss

Monday, 07 July 2008 08:54 -

Researchers determined people who ate soy at least twice a day had 20 percent less memory function than those who ate it significantly less.

Hogervorst said vegetarians and elderly women seemed to be highly susceptible to potential memory loss from soy consumption.

More...